Raiders Shellback Devils

Thursday, November 27, 2003. Doyle Field, Leominster. The underdog FHS Red Raiders surely were ready for what many called the best Leominster defense in years. The entire team, coaching staff, the fans, and the City of Fitchburg proved the naysayers wrong once again, for the sixth time in as many years. The final score: FHS 24, LHS 14. To be honest, it really wasn't much of a game. The weather cooperated, although when the clouds rolled in the temperature dropped about 20 degrees. It didn't matter though, because the Raiders were feeling only good feelings, due to the ease of William Earley's amazing rushes, while the Devils were feeling the wrath of the FHS defensive swarm. Gama Payton, T. J. Loughlin, Matt Lamey, Austin Douglas, and the rest of the Raiders clearly outmatched the somewhat over-rated Blue Devils. For the Class of 2004 Football Players, they never lost to the Leominster eleven; an amazing feat when one considers the odds of that happening. The Red Raiders went on to the Super Bowl, where they fell to a significantly larger Longmeadow team.
